

How to add new records? Adding new records in KUJA simply means capturing unrequited transactions. On the finance module, click add new record. You can record sales, purchases, expenses, product losses, or miscellaneous. To add a new sale record, click sales. Search or select the customer. Select the product. Enter the quantity. Enter the transaction date. And click save records. Then confirm by clicking save records. Next, to record an expense you made in your warehouse, click add new record. Click expense. Select the expense category. Select the description. Enter the amount. Enter the transaction date. And click save record. To record product losses in your warehouse, click add new record. Select product loss. Select the type of loss. Either product or empty. Select the reason. Select the product. Enter the quantity lost. Select the date. And click save records. To record miscellaneous. Click add new record. Select miscellaneous. Select the reason. Select the product. Search or select the recipient. Enter the quantity sold. Enter the transaction date. And click save records. Then confirm by clicking save record. This process ensures all unrecorded transactions are properly captured.
